Maclean's Editorials

If Germany Wins

AS THIS issue of Maclean's goes to press, to express the wish of United States politicians, the War Relocation Department of State has already released its Message to Canada, James H. Crockett, for telling us Canadian citizens that it is his opinion that the future of democracy throughout the world, in neutral countries as well as belligerent countries, can be guaranteed only by an allied victory over Germany.

The State Department confidence article James W. Gerard, who was the U.S. ambassador to Berlin in the days of the last war, for stating as he did state a few days ago in a broadcast speech, that "America cannot afford a Nazi victory in the present European conflict."

We do not think the State Department put its heart into the saying of Mr. Crockett's leadership. It knows that its opinion isn't its opinion, was based on facts plain enough for all to behold.

WE KNOW that Mr. James Wolfe wrote back to Washington a copy of the German weekly, Die Woche, which contained an article headed "The World when Britain is Defeated." We are indebted to the K.H. News Letter, published at Hendon, Boston, Boston, England, for permission to set its translation of that article.

As Die Woche outlines Hitler's objectives, this is what will happen:

Hitler can power down Britain will be allowed to remain neutral, the solution to "European danger."

The British dominions will "read that they might become independent states, if they feel 'strong enough' but it is assumed by Germany of Canada won't be (United States and Australia had previously New Zealand) to "be more powerful together."

South Africa might become independent, "with certain restrictions." Independence is also promised to India, but it is noted that the British might have to be given the control of the Indian Empire. India will be divided into British India, and will become an independent state governed by money from British America, and possessing a great military force.

The Colonies of Britain are divided as a last before the eyes of other Colonies (Irish Tragedy thrown in for good measure) is promised to Spain, Malta to Italy, Cyprus to Greece. The African Colonies will be "open to all progress in regions of Europe." The Americas too are to receive their share of the spoils. The United States, South America and Greenland should be given to the Anglos. The Bahamas are to be divided between Cuba and the U.S.A. The latter is also to get Bermuda. The British Isles will be shared between Germany and the Dominion Republic. British Guiana is expected to be given to Venezuela and Brazil.

Neutrality is to be as far as participation in the benefits of "Victory," as outlined in the progress of Die Woche. Portugal is to be given to Spain, and the Portuguese return to be made "a necessary necessity." To whom they are to be accessible is not stated, but it is pointed out that Germany must have an opening overseas.

Holland and Belgium are to be awarded for their neutrality in this war. When victory comes they will be divided into "a greater Power." Again Die Woche does not specify which "greater Power" it has in mind, and we can only leave our readers to guess which great Power would under take this great responsibility. China must submit to Japanese domination. Russia must be placed to serve as part of a great Asian state in favour of Asian peoples.

The significance of the war aims outlined in Die Woche becomes clear when one remembers the role of the press and the tremendous under which a headline in a State so totalitarian in character as Nazi Germany.

And what of Hitler and the United States? In an article which will appear in the next issue of Maclean's, Bruce Forbes quotes Hitler as saying to his last July "When I have occupied Europe, I shall have all America to subvert. There are sufficient German engineers in the United States to make a Nazi revolution if I can establish my law in Europe."

These are some of the reasons why we believe that Mr. Crockett and Mr. Gerard represent profound United States opinion more accurately than does, for instance, the translation of Die Woche, with its "all Germany and his leadership would let them go for the hell of the world."

"Presumably this article was written after the Red flagging in the war, but the fact remains that it is a warning to us."

Canadian Coal

AMONG the business groups in the industry of the petroleum industry is the question of a National Coal Policy.

At the time of the dissolution, such a policy was being considered by the Fuel Sub-Committee of the cabinet, of which Hon. Mr. Clegg was chairman. Little attention was paid to the problem during the election campaign, but it is now to be raised in the new Parliament, for wartime conditions is strong.

The Western Canada Fuel Association submitted to the Royal Commission on Dominion Financial Resources a timely and carefully prepared brief headed "Canadian Coal for Canadians." Since then, that association, the Edmonton Chamber of Commerce and other bodies have been demanding initiation and acceleration in its requests for action.

The war has provided them with a strong motive—the conservation of Canada's strategic in correspondence with Prime Minister King and members of the cabinet, the fuel association stated.

That Canada exports approximately three million tons of coal annually, most of it from the United States.

That approximately $10,000,000 will be required to pay for imports of American coal and American transportation this season, and in addition the amount on Canadian funds in the U.S.A. will have to be provided.

That a large amount of this money may have to be paid in gold. That Canada's gold will be exchanged for U.S. coal while Canadian money is in the U.S.A. will have to be provided.

That American soldiers and sailors and American freight rates are going up.

The western fuel association also states that its members are concerned by greatest use of Canadian coal, that the Government, in the same manner as it has administered Canadian fisheries, agriculture and the functions of federal departments, should consider Canada's ability to supply its own coal, how to burn it properly, and when its national use moves to the economic life of the whole Dominion.

Pointing out that America's iron shipment coal is on short time, with rising oil prices, the Edmonton Chamber of Commerce made these recommendations to the Minister of Mines:

Continue the subventions on western coal to Manitoba for industrial purposes at a reduction of ten per cent of the freight rate, at least until present war needs expire. (These subventions were cancelled last December on the ground of economy.)

Restrict shipments of American coal into the territory west of Fort Arthur or the Great Lakes.

Establish in Ontario the president and province that was established in Western Canada during the last war. The reputation obtained by the Fuel Sub-Committee that when one ton of foreign coal is purchased for domestic purposes a ton of Canadian coal shall be purchased, that is, a ton for a ton.

That only Canadian coal be used for government relief and military purposes.

That in developing Canadian coal products made in Canada out of American coal be not called "Canadian Coal," which is really selling American coal for consumption in Canada.

The problem is not so easy one. The United States Canadian Trade Treaty would allow other nations to export to Canada. But our whole economic structure is a part and parcel of our war effort, and exchange conservation is a war weapon.

A national policy embracing all fuels is bound to evolve sooner or later. In wartime, sooner is better than later.

Between You and the Weather

NEBBIE AND RAIN, like a Mephisto force, the rule of Canada must stand guard . . . protecting your home, factory, office and other buildings from their common enemy . . . the weather.

How essential it is that your roof does its job . . . and how easy it is to assure this today. It needs covered more plies, like materials, one more would dominate the skyline of any Canadian city . . . that roof, as any American or Building Engineer would tell you, is the "weather specification roof" . . . a roof that is soundly constructed, not in its placement, position by time . . . the roof that today protects the majority of important buildings on this continent, some of which are still giving troubleless service after 20, 30 and even 50 years.

The name "Barrett's" is rapidly becoming a household name in these readings. Important because these structures, reinforced, for all Barrett's Material, Barrett's Asphalt, Shingles and Ball Roofing are made by the same company and the same high standards of experience and care as the famous Barrett's Roofing Board. Important also because all Barrett's Roofings are made in Canada, so Barrett's plants right here, the new standards to the highest reading.

So, when you think of Roofings for your eyes of building, remember only one name Barrett's . . . and Barrett's Roofing is it.

The below in-flow control unit is an actuator (power switch) a great device which enables the user to turn on and off a transmitter. In each example shown, a power source is required to act on the signal. This is a unit from the Fly Control line. One can receive power on across the line channel. Auto-circuiting may be done on many occasions, however. But we show a very real case of multiple channels being used to control a line in the subsequent case which required that, in the second trial, to pass through. Here, this was used that we can see in the circuit.

Keep Acid-spray off Your Car's Vitals with a Willard "Safety-Fill" Battery!

Just ONE cordfiling of an ordinary battery is enough to create the strong self-oxidation to large gas through the vents. If the battery is located under the hood, the gas may spread all over and onto wiring or exposed metal parts of motor and car and cause serious damage. Even if your battery is under the floorboards, you're not safe from the dangers of cordfiling. Every day thousands of starting failures are caused by the corroded cables and terminals that come from cordfiling.

Positive Protection Against Corrosion

Willard offers you positive protection against the dangerous consequences of the new "SAFETY-FILL" construction. It protects your motor and wiring system from harmful acid spray—stops the carbon losses and starting failures caused by corrosion. It is available in popular types of WATER DUTY, HEAVY DUTY and STANDARD DUTY Willards AT NO INCREASE IN PRICE.

"Aren't you glad your son had this picture taken?"

An X-ray picture of your lungs may give startling reassurance that you do not have pulmonary tuberculosis. However, it might indicate the presence of the disease.

Although Canada's death rate from tuberculosis was lower in 1939 than ever before, the alarming fact remains that this disease still is a major cause of suffering and death—and the leading cause of death among young people.

In an average man, about 15 cm. of the chest disease claims the greatest number of victims. In, to mothers and fathers who have reason to worry about their children's lungs, and to young people without these age limits, the X-ray can be a friend indeed.

For the X-ray helps to reveal tuberculosis before peculiar or chronic symptoms are noticed. And when found in the early stages, the disease usually can be treated by the simple measures now at our disposal, instead of suffering untold pain and loss of earning power.

There are many schools and other educational institutions are making available facilities for regularly checking the health of all their students. Physicians, too, can take and communicate on, leaving the government bureau of determining tuberculosis in any nation. The disease is not to spread. Many institutions already are offering tuberculosis tests and X-ray examinations at low cost, or even free to their students.

For groups, these examinations are even more suggestive to the eyes of those who are known to have been exposed to infection from a person who has active tuberculosis. After a case where the most common warning symptoms of tuberculosis are present, such as no persistent pain in the chest, weakness, sense of fatigue, loss of weight, frequent irritability or lack of appetite, persistent cough or hoarseness, nighting of blood, abnormal fever in temperature.

Since medical science is today better able than ever to diagnose tuberculosis early, and to treat it when discovered early, the best way to stamp out this disease is to detect early cases and so prevent its spread.

You are the one to guard your lungs against tuberculosis. Read for the Metropolitan's free booklet, "Tuberculosis," its extensive valuable information for protecting your health.

Happy Endings

A "HAPPY" ending seems to me, these days, to be the wrong angle on the world's condition. I have seen those who expect all their guests to be the first ones to bring the good news to the party, and I have seen those who expect all their guests to be the first ones to bring the good news to the party, and I have seen those who expect all their guests to be the first ones to bring the good news to the party.

Twenty years ago, happy endings were the only ones that counted. But now, in a world where the only good news is the news that the world is still here, the only good news is the news that the world is still here.
